

Operation of the Plak-Vac® Suction Toothbrush

The Plak-Vac suction toothbrush is used with a suction source to remove fluids and other matter from the oral cavity during brushing. The brush head opens to a hollow inner lumen that allows fluid and matter to flow through the brush handle to the suction canister. The finger port is used to adjust the suction through the brush head, allowing for controlled removal of fluid and matter from the mouth.

